1	Site has not allowed me to rate multiple segments of Section 4.	Oct 24, 2011 12:27 AM
2	They all had a positive impact and allowed you to meet new people.	Oct 18, 2011 1:38 PM
3	Provided a lot of great information.	Oct 17, 2011 5:26 PM
4	Overall I found the experience negative, because my time was wasted, I did not learn anything new, and essentially the only reason I was there is so that other organizations that don't know about their own councils could see my organization. If your intent was to have me there as something to look at, it would have been nice to be told that in advance.	Oct 13, 2011 9:05 PM
5	it was a great experience to meet other greek members in different councils. Although we are all different and joined different councils with our own different reasons, our organizations share the same goals all the same which was nice to know.	Oct 13, 2011 2:26 PM
6	It wouldn't let me put positive impact for all my answers btw.	Oct 13, 2011 12:38 PM
7	#2--> Fall 2010 Greek Community: Our council (MGC) as a whole who participated in the event felt that this portion of the session was not conducted well enough to truly educate the FAU Greek Community. We as minority Greeks learn these things during our new member education program, and we felt it was redundant. Also my facilitator had me present on the MGC council and I felt that was inappropriate for the facilitator not to know the organizations in the MGC or NPHC. She mentioned all of the IFC/Panhell organizations at FAU and none of the other chapters in the other councils. That particularly doesn't educate the other organizations on who their fellow Greeks are at FAU. My suggestion is to either have MGC/NPHC members as facilitators for the next "So Now What?" or have a informational for those chosen to be facilitators so that everyone knows their information before they come before new members to educate them.	Oct 13, 2011 12:31 PM
8	Ryan presentation was very motivational. He raised good points and got me thiking about some things that I had not before.	Oct 12, 2011 9:36 PM
9	Very entertainign man with the microphoen who went to UCF. He was the only reason I wasn't asleep.	Oct 12, 2011 7:56 AM
10	All of these things had a positive impact on me but it will not let me select that for all.	Oct 11, 2011 7:59 PM
11	making the most of your exsperiance was a very good thing!!!	Oct 11, 2011 10:12 AM
12	The activities broadened my perspectives on how different councils interact with one another. Ultimately it was a great learning aspect for how to succeed in Fraternity and Sorority life at at F.AU. The one lesson I gained from this event was how often times simple ideas and common sense are the greatest tools to succeed.	Oct 11, 2011 8:51 AM

Page 1, Q4. Please rate the overall impact that the following "So Now What? Program" activities had on you as a participant:

AWESOME! I don't feel as though the sessions however created a community or even a welcoming environment. As a member of the NPHC, I feel like the majority of the members in the other councils don't really care about the differences or similarities between our organizations and they don't care to learn. I found it slightly disheartening to be in groups with pledges or people who hadn't even completed their membership intake process because while they were learning valuable information, I was forced to be in a group to learn things I already know. I understand the idea and its great, I just think that execution could have been much better. I think it might be helpful to separate the groups between new members and people who are still in the intake part of their pledging process.

14	I found all the information provided to be positive however, the survey will only allow me to choose one per column.	Oct 10, 2011 10:04 PM
15	Ryans comments and video were very motivating and eye opening!	Oct 10, 2011 9:08 PM
16	The large group was a really moving presentation.	Oct 10, 2011 8:25 PM
17	This really should have been spread out into multiple days	Oct 10, 2011 7:50 PM
18	everything was great!	Oct 10, 2011 5:04 PM
19	I believe it's a good experience...but not for MGC. It was heavily focused on CPA/IFC and the neophytes there, were completely oblivious about other councils. Maybe next time they can incorporate activities based on other councils so it's not just a "basic review" for the other councils outside CPA/IFC.	Oct 10, 2011 4:15 PM
